

The Women's Initiative for Peace is a group of women who come from different social and political backgrounds; who have different identities, beliefs, and sexual orientations, yet they all live in the same country and thus are affected by the same kinds of violence. They have all been struggling against war and male dominated violence for many years as they all know exactly what war means for women.